The Perry automobile company have the old brick house at 59 South Main street which has been a tenement-house for the past few years and formerly a tavern, remodeled into a garage and storehouse for their machines. Deputy Sheriff Dennis Donahue of Granville passed through the city this morning with William Murray, an East Barre man, who was taken to the county jail for safe keeping. Before Justice of the Peace A. C. Dickey last evening Murray pleaded not guilty to a breach of the peace charge and when he found himself unable to furnish bail, he was remanded to jail until Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock, when a hearing is to be held at East Barre. Barre Town authorities allege that the respondent committed an assault on his housekeeper, Mamie Riddle. His arrest by Deputy Donahue was made on a complaint issued at the request of the grand juror.

Arrangements for the Salvation Army campaign in Barre are practically completed and indications to-day pointed to a large audience in the Congregational church this evening when Colonel Adam Gifford of Boston, one of the most gifted orators in the cause, is to deliver an address on the mission of the Salvation Army in the United States and Canada. The meeting is to open at 8 o'clock. William McDonald of Addison place is to preside at the meeting and persons prominent in other denominational circles are to participate in the gathering. Brigadier Andrews of Hartford, Conn., the division officer, and Mrs. Andrews are to be present. The local committee is headed by Captain Hazel Hood, in charge of the Barre barracks.

H. C. Stockwell, solicitor for the Tenny company in Washington county, sustained bruises in an accident at Webster yesterday which necessitated medical attention. Mr. Stockwell was on a carriage drive around Millstone hill and was at the Barre & Chelsea railroad crossing when his horse became frightened by the puffing of a nearby locomotive. With a degree of obstinacy that may only be described as equine, the horse persisted in his kicking until the carriage wheels were so crumpled that the driver was thrown to the ground. He fell through the top cover of the vehicle and landed on his right side. Passing travelers were at the scene in time to stop the horse and Mr. Stockwell was brought to the office of Dr. W. E. Luzzell in this city. It was feared that the man had sustained a rib fracture and an arm dislocation, but examination did not reveal any bone breaks. Mr. Stockwell was accompanied to his home in Montpelier by Superintendent C. F. Millar of the Consolidated Lighting company.

INSANITY MAY BE DEFENCE FOR WILLIAMS

the advances and that both planned to raise money in order to get away from their own firesides; that Mrs. Felch was to realize from the sale of personal effects and that the prisoner, according to his statement to the witness, was to dispose of his household goods and go to New Hampshire, there to meet Mrs. Felch as soon as she could arrange affairs.

It will be recalled that Mary Williams, wife of the respondent, testified Wednesday that in November, 1915, Williams sold his furniture and went to New Hampshire while she went to live with her sister. The conference referred to in the doctor's testimony in the foregoing took place in October, 1915, according to Dr. Rowland's statement on the stand yesterday afternoon.

Always with deliberation before he spoke, Dr. Rowland testified in cross examination of his conference with Williams at the prisoner's house one dark night in October and again at a piece of highway in Topsham known as the forks sometime subsequently. Much of the testimony relating to Williams' alleged admission of improper relations with Mrs. Felch was brought out in the cross examination and it was in the course of the cross examination that counsel for the defense propounded the question as to Williams' mental condition.

On the night of the first conference testified to by the witness, Rowland, he was called to the Williams home for professional reasons, the occasion being the birth of a child to the respondent and Mrs. Williams. Because the night was unusually dark, the doctor stayed until daylight approached in order the better to make his way home to East Corinth. Williams, Dr. Rowland went on to testify, told him of his close relations with Mrs. Felch, said he would dispose of his furniture and leave Topsham as soon as his wife recovered. Moreover, he planned to leave his wife and go to Meredith, N. H., to get a job. Anna Felch was to follow him as soon as she should realize enough money from her own effects. Asked by the witness as to how that would be treating Joseph Felch, Dr. Rowland quoted Williams as saying that a divorce, secured by Felch or his wife, would remedy the trouble. Williams, according to the witness, went on to swear that the intimacy between him and Mrs. Felch had stood as he had described them, improper, for some time. Witness swore that Williams told him he was infatuated over Mrs. Felch, although invariably she made the advances, following him oftentimes from place to place.

"Why do you treat Joseph Felch that way?" is the question which the witness said he asked Williams on the occasion of the Oct. 10 conference. Witness said that Williams' gesture, in replying, indicated doubt and that he then admitted that Joe Felch was the "kindest, best employer he ever had." At the close of the conference that night, the witness said, Williams again told him of having improper relations with Mrs. Felch on many occasions.

The date of the second talk with Williams was uncertain, but the witness knew that it occurred at the forks. Williams, he continued, told him again of having improper relations with Mrs. Felch. Asked by counsel for the respondent why he did not speak to Mr. Felch about the Williams statement, Dr. Rowland said that it was against his idea of professional ethics, although Mr. Felch was numbered among his close friends. Asked concerning Williams' mental bearing at the time of the second conference, Dr. Rowland testified, "as stated already, that he appeared to be more or less under the ordinary mentality."

On the cross-examination Dr. Rowland admitted that he had conversed with Mr. Morgan, a detective, since the tragedy and that he had related his conversation with Williams to State's Attorney Frank S. Williams. Also, the witness said, he made a statement at the preliminary proceedings in Bradford. Cross examined, the witness said he knew Mrs. Felch as a girl and had known of her since girlhood. At times he had been called to the Felch home on professional missions. He had known the Williams boys, meaning the respondent, Otis, and his brother, since their boyhood. As to one of his reasons for not telling Mr. Felch of the condition of affairs as revealed by statements by Williams, he stated later in the cross examination that he was averse to breaking up a family.

Earlier in the afternoon Dr. Rowland, in direct examination, testified to receiving the news of Felch's death at 7 o'clock on the morning of Easter Sunday. Accompanied by the town health officer of Topsham, who met him by appointment, he went to the Felch homestead and thence to the sugarhouse. He left his team, he said, with the hired man, Williams, the respondent. To the sugarhouse the two men proceeded, as indicated in the physician's testimony. There the witness viewed the body, noted its peculiar position, a position which he described on the stand as peculiar for the reason that the body was said by someone, it was claimed, among those who had visited the sugarhouse to be the body of a man who died from a self-inflicted wound. He noticed the gun and that a blood stain on a syrup or milk can was on the side of the can away from the body and that the side nearest the body was devoid of stains. He noticed the juxtaposition of the body and the gun. Shown the crevice in the side of the sugarhouse, whence it was alleged the death dealing bullet proceeded, he imagined the course of the bullet in passing through the lighted lantern and lodging in a beam. He discerned an old straw hat, punctured by a bullet. Then he saw on the floor of the sugarhouse, bloodstains three feet from the spot where the body lay.

Later Dr. Rowland testified to finding a blood-stained piece of clothing in a chiffonier at Williams' house. He told of delivering the clothing to Deputy Sheriff Gale. In the drawer containing the blood-stained textile only a man's clothing was found, he said. He also testified that death must have ensued several hours before he viewed the body, possibly before 11 o'clock the night previous.

George Hight, the town health officer, testified to accompanying Dr. Rowland to the Felch premises and to the sugarhouse. Several people were there when he viewed the remains. He described the position in which the body lay, said he noticed the lantern with the shattered globe and the crevice in the sugarhouse wall. His testimony corroborated in detail the observations of others who visited the sugarhouse that morning.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Miss Marjorie Williams of Boston is passing several days with friends in Barre and vicinity.

United States Marshal Arthur P. Carpenter of Brattleboro was a business visitor in the city yesterday and to-day.

Dean Ladd of East Hill has gone to Johnson, where he is attending the summer sessions connected with the state normal school.

Dewey park is to be the scene of the next dance of the private assembly series conducted this summer under the auspices of the Italian Gaiety club. The dance will be held on the evening of Thursday, July 27, and an orchestra from Barre will play for the dancers. The following committee has been selected to complete arrangements for the affair: Joseph Merlo, Harry Colombo, Charles Caldwara, Frank Faccini of Montpelier, Miss Lena Buzzi, Miss Nina Cassellini, Miss Lillian Corti and Miss Carrie Calagni. Some novel lighting effects will be introduced in the park pavilion by a special decoration committee.

Here in Washington county there are nearly 175 candidates for citizenship who are awaiting the arrival of a United States judge in order that their citizenship may be ratified. All of them, of course, have passed through the preliminary examinations conducted by Clerk F. S. Platt of the United States naturalization court. Just now Judge H. B. Howe, who usually presides over the session of United States court in Montpelier, is busy with cases in New York, although he may be at liberty sometime next month. Although Clerk Platt has received some over 200 applications for citizenship in Washington county this week, he expects to return in August to Barre and Barre Town, where a big majority of the applications are made.
